Foreword

No longer forward nor behind
I look in hope or fear
But, grateful, take the good I find
The best of now and here.

John Greenleaf Whittier

The adolescent spirit has long stimulated the adult mind to anger, joy, disgust, and admiration. We are unique and inscrutable. Psychologists, hoping to calm the chaos we cause, examine us diligently but in vain. They can only speculate on our strange actions. For instance, what makes us read shelves of books at home and fail English? Why does the allure of boycotting the cafeteria or of going over the hill invariably seduce us? How can sane young men gripe all week about the "prison" and then break a leg for her on Saturday afternoon? Yes, we are strange creatures—perhaps high school captivity is best for us.

The 1964 Bridge marks the release of 215 of us children into the ranks of men and women. This can be a gloomy occasion if we believe that we must abandon that quality which makes us adolescent. These past few years have been our best, despite their unsettling leaps from aching joy to despair, and the scowling adult world seems to offer a heavy burden. If, however, we recognize the possibilities of a lifetime of adolescence, we are saved! There is no reason why the delicious excitement of youth should end at graduation, as if our gowns were shrouds. Look at the adults who truly relish life (a rare bunch) and you will find that they are young old people rather than just old people.

Surely, we must soon accept the responsibilities of the world with maturity, sadly lacking now; we have been told as much in numerous admonitions throughout our high school years. Strangely enough, we have heard little about peace of mind. Perhaps our elders know that we have the secret already.

In years to come, this book will be invaluable in recreating for us the ebullience of today. While turning its pages, remember that Henry David Thoreau, no advocate of accepted adult behavior, said that ". . . men lead lives of quiet desperation." Let us avoid that life in making a world better for ourselves and for our children.

Dedication: James Hayes

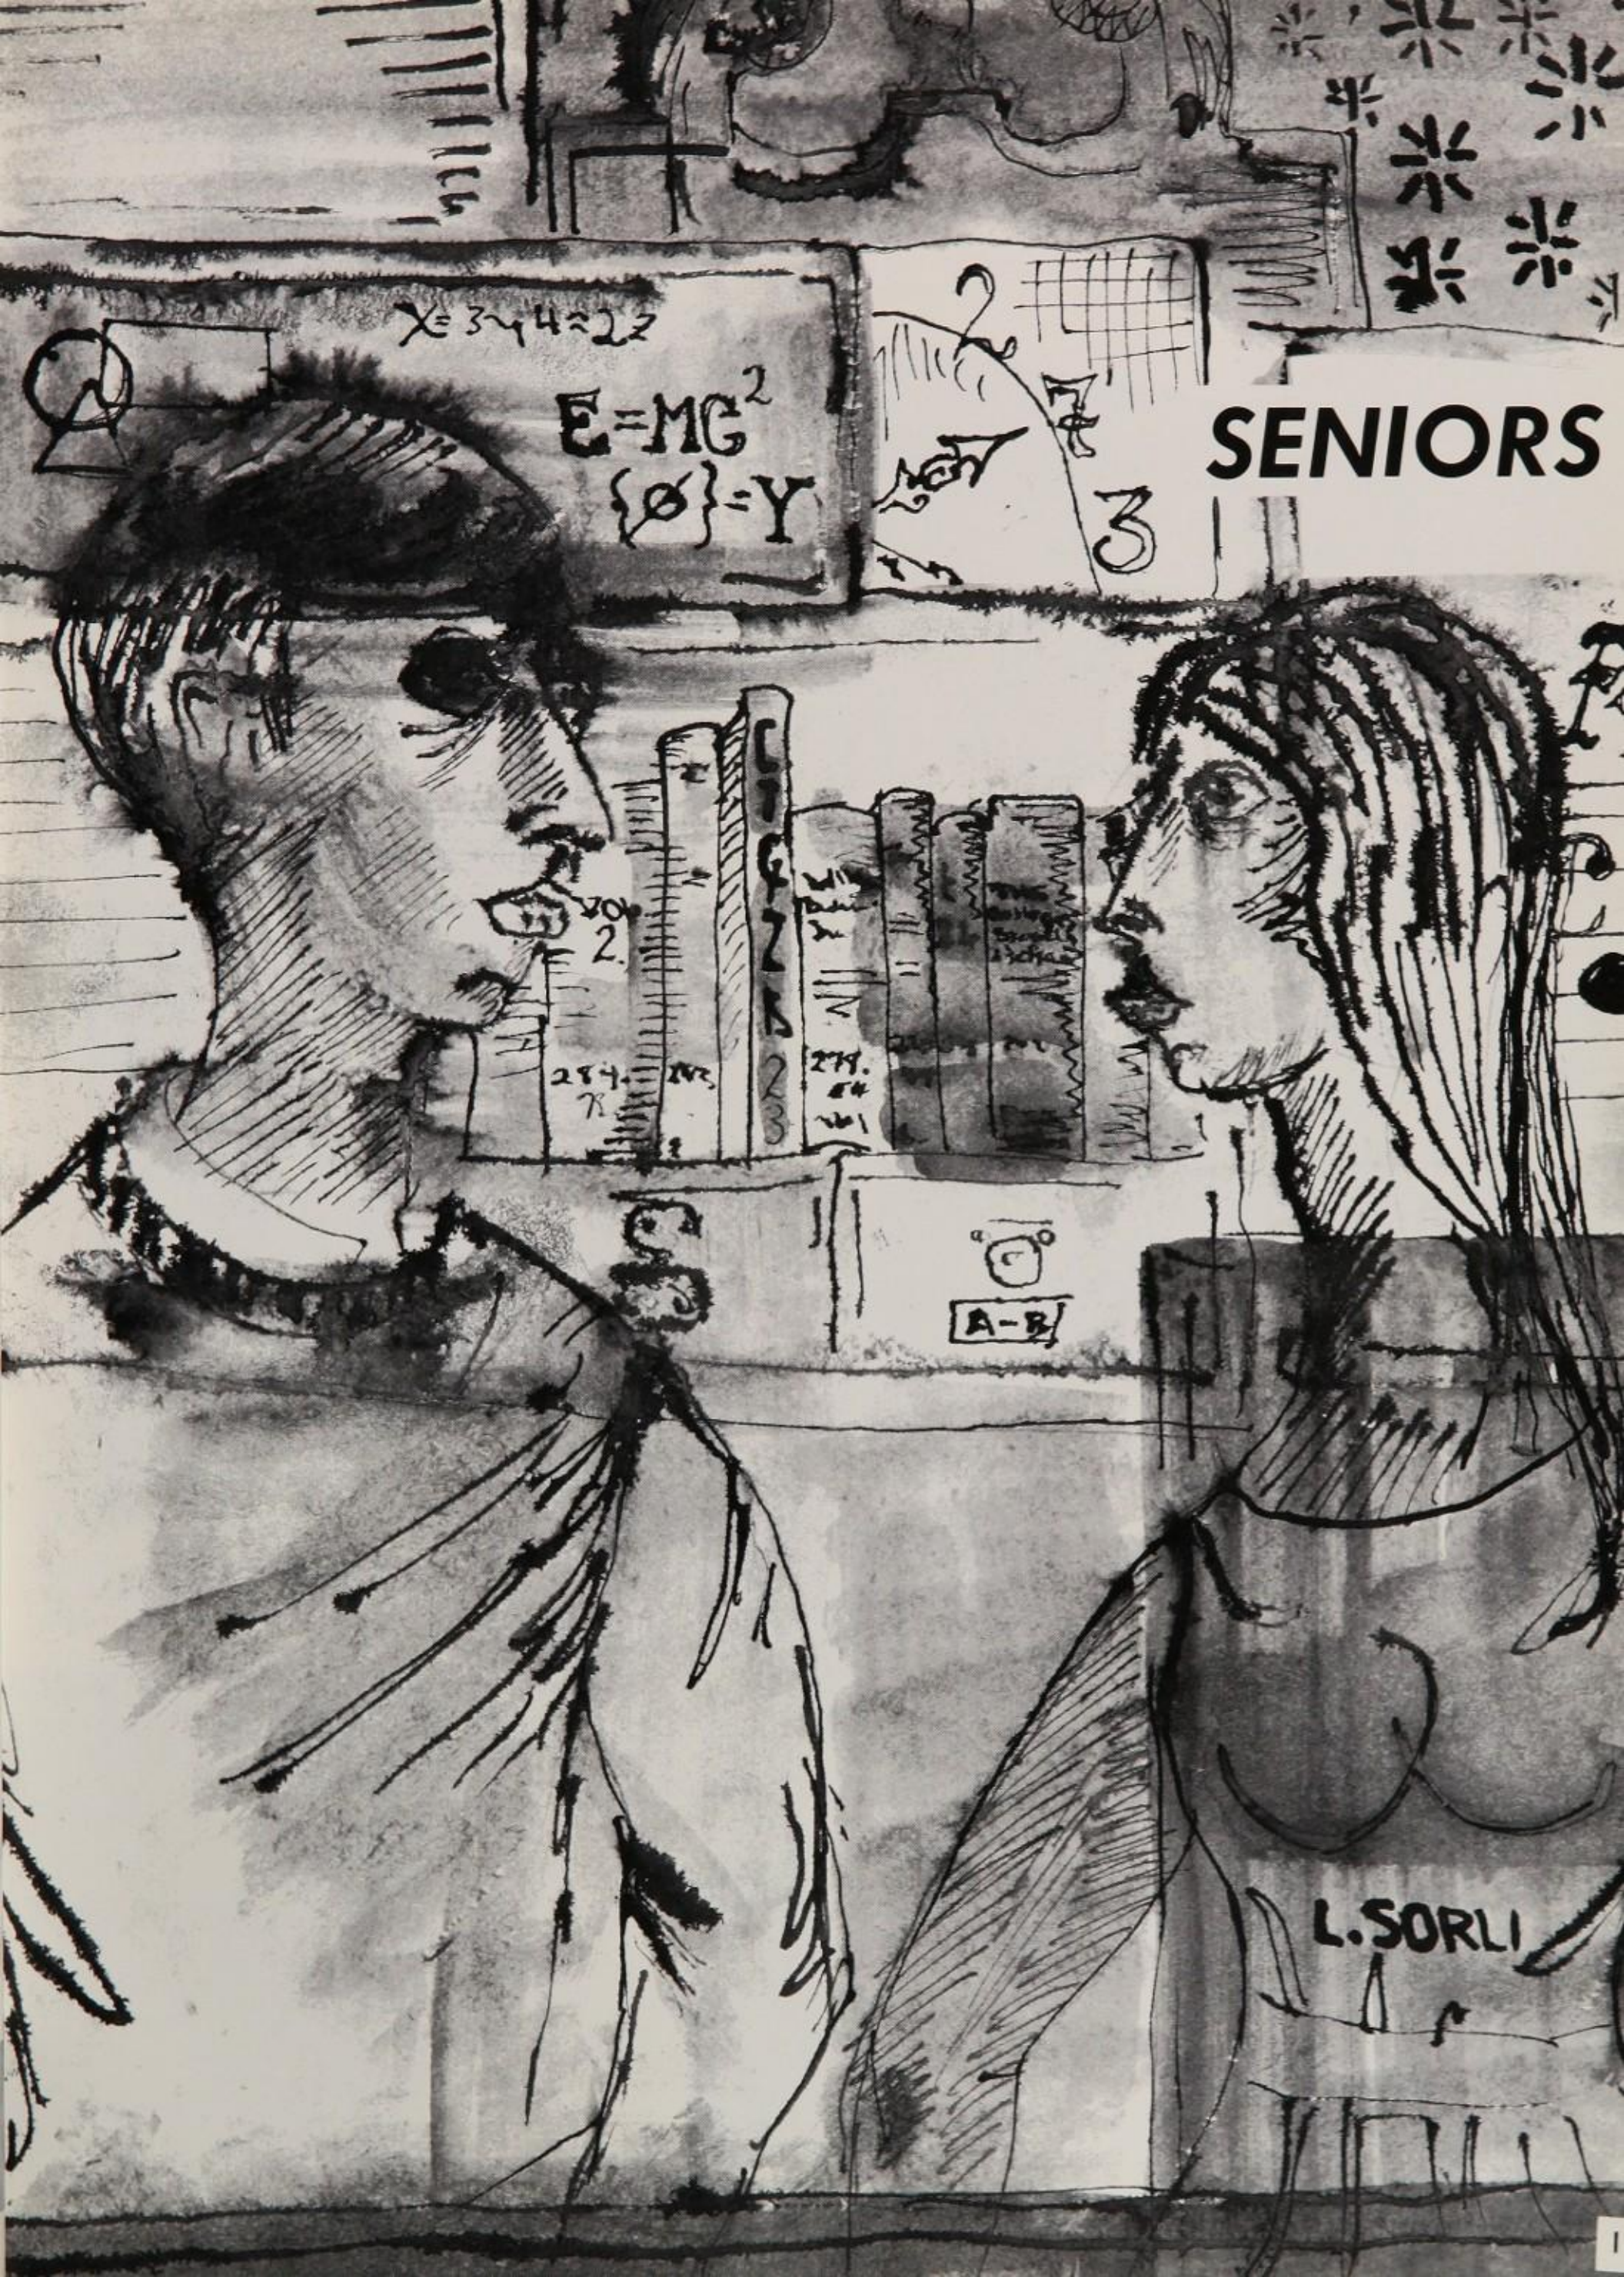

Our four years were, at times perilous. Old values chafed, new ones were unfamiliar, uncertainty was the constant reality.

Mr. Hayes touched our lives in many places: he coached our boys in three sports and encouraged them in others; he taught us history in a voice which, vibrant from making a point, carried throughout the H-Building; he listened to our problems. The boys can remember locker room stories of his own prom nights and basketball games, stories which formed a link between our youth and his maturity.

To this inspiring teacher, advocate of the well-rounded student, and hearty friend, we, the Class of 1964, dedicate our yearbook.

UNDERCLASSMEN

JUNIORS

In the Junior year, everything seems to come out well. You're old enough to lead the play or play the lead; Seniors like you, and if you feel generous, you pay the same compliment to underclassmen. You probably get your license, and experience your first real dates—if you are bold, you may even try for that "older woman." Teachers respect you, finally admitting that you've lost your baby fat. College is close enough to give you the dignity of "working for something," but far enough away so that you don't have to work too hard. Sometimes you wish you would always be sixteen.

SOPHOMORES

The Sophomores are entering the world of upperclassmen with the completion of this year. They have finished one half of their high-school career and have credited our school in many fields. Propheying, we can say that these sophomores have the intelligence, enthusiasm, and interest to make the second half of their high-school career highly successful. The transition will be a natural one, yet the changes will be monumental. There will no longer be the feeling of "betweenness"—between the "new" freshman stage and the hectic upperclass stage.

Our Frosh, this year, are worthy of our praise. They entered the high school as young adolescents and have matured a great deal during their first year here. They, as well as all underclassmen, have made lasting friendships. They have formed their own teams in all areas including athletics and academics, yet, they have also contributed to the activities of the upperclassmen. They are more than just freshmen to us—they are examples of our leadership.

Most students will remember our football team for its record—four losses—or for specific games like the great wins against Wakefield and Lexington or the disappointing Stoneham and crushing Melrose defeats. The players, however, will have more valuable memories. They will remember the rough, early practices, the runs up to "The Citadel" after Marlboro, or cigars after Lexington. Embarrassed coaches speaking at sports banquets have often repeated the axiom that "football builds character." Only the players know how much this means.

CHEERLEADERS

1963-1964

Cheering is many things to the girls who know it best. It is exhausting practices, maroon and white uniforms, nervousness before the first rally and first games of the seasons, practices in the cafeteria, hoarse throats, white pom-poms, heads held high and a desire to arouse school spirit.

Cheering is a special spirit. We have shared hopes, frustrations, victories and defeats with both the football and basketball teams. We have experienced the elation of winning and the terrible depression of defeat; from both we always emerged eager for the next game.

BAND-MAJORETTES

You there—student—when was the last time you really listened to the band? Don't try to squirm out of it—you probably didn't even know we had a band! Did you know that there are two battles on Saturday mornings in the fall? That's right. While our heroes on the football team are thrashing it out with Melrose, our heroes in the band are combating the sheet music, the air freezing their reeds, and your apathy! If you knew the thrill of tackling a savage arpeggio, the breathless team work of trumpet, piccolo, and drum—but, alas, you scarcely favor our musical warriors with half an ear. What's worse, you don't even know about the band's undefeated season—this is the best we've ever had! When you finally realize that music is really a spectator sport, the band will get the attention it deserves.

And who else do you see on the football field at halftime? Our majorettes performing with an air of perfection. They are the spectator sport during halftime.

FIELD HOCKEY

VARSIITY: Capt. L. Emerson, D. Baldwin, W. Ross, R. Ramsey, B. Brooks, R. Golench, J. Sheehan, A. Windheim, J. Shaw, S. Bruce, W. Portenoy, L. Brown, S. Childs, M. Inferrata, M. Campbell, P. Rodday, J. Beede, Miss Clark, Coach.

People wonder why girls have any competitive team sport because of the sparse crowds at games. The girls are quick to answer that it isn't for spectators that they play, but for the satisfaction of a job well done. The field hockey team should be quite satisfied this year, for they did indeed do a good job, attaining a record of 5-1-3. The team had the ability to win, but under the leadership of Captain Luran Emerson, they generated the most important ingredient, enthusiasm.

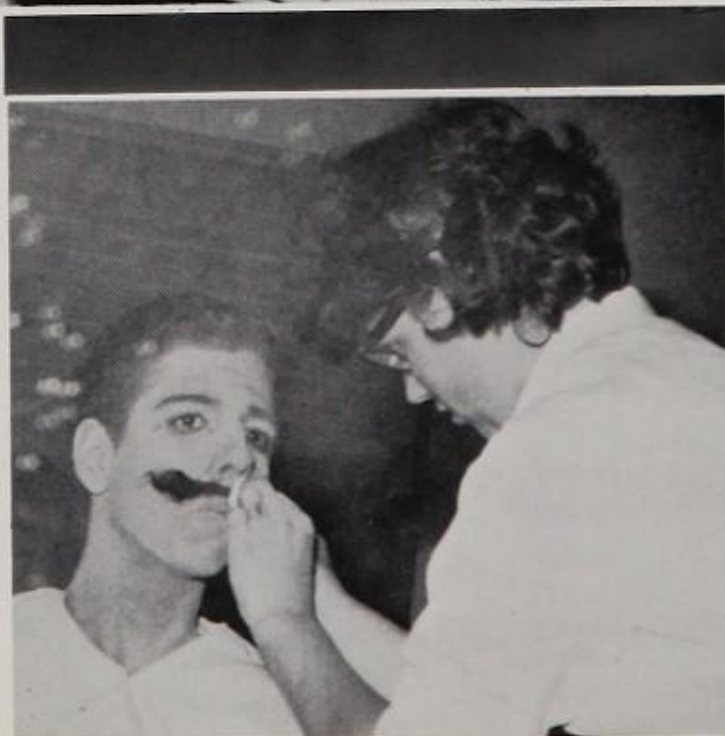

The Taming of the Shrew

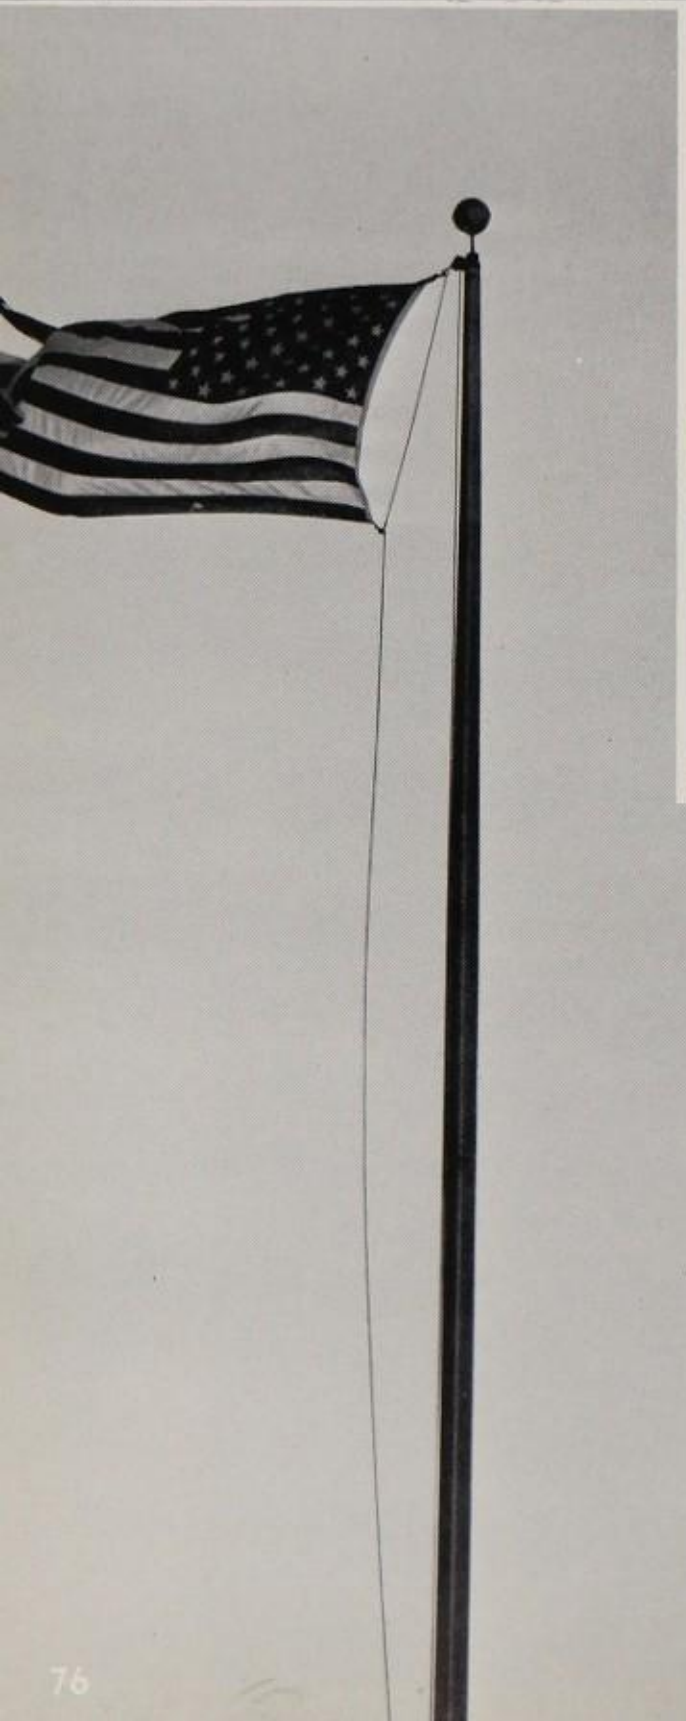

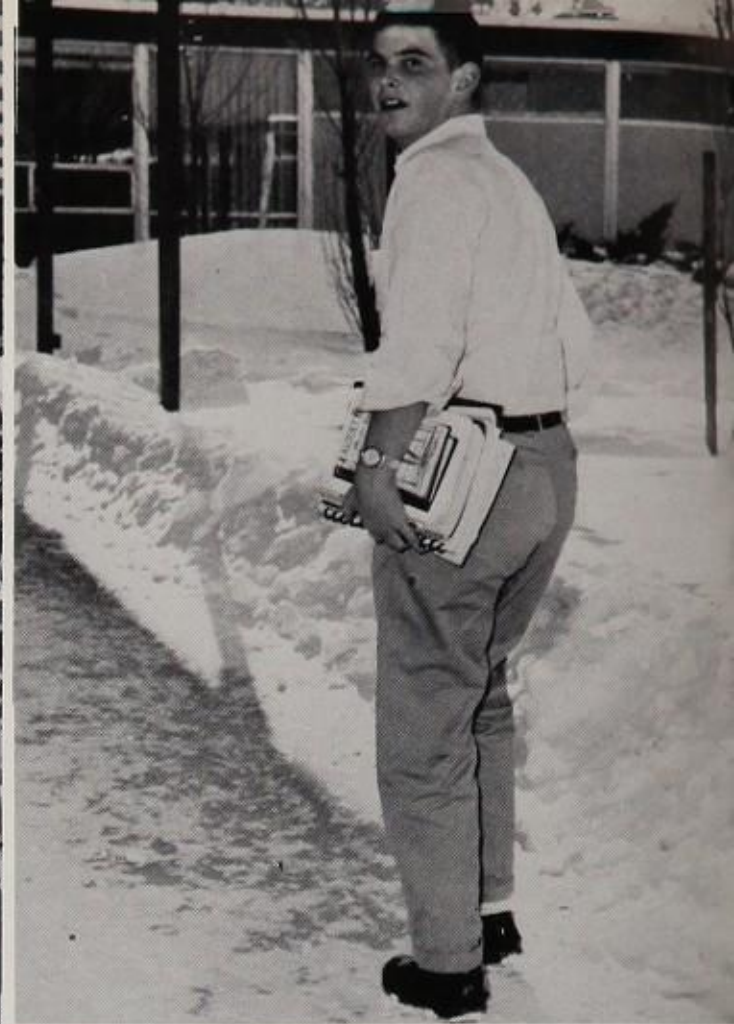

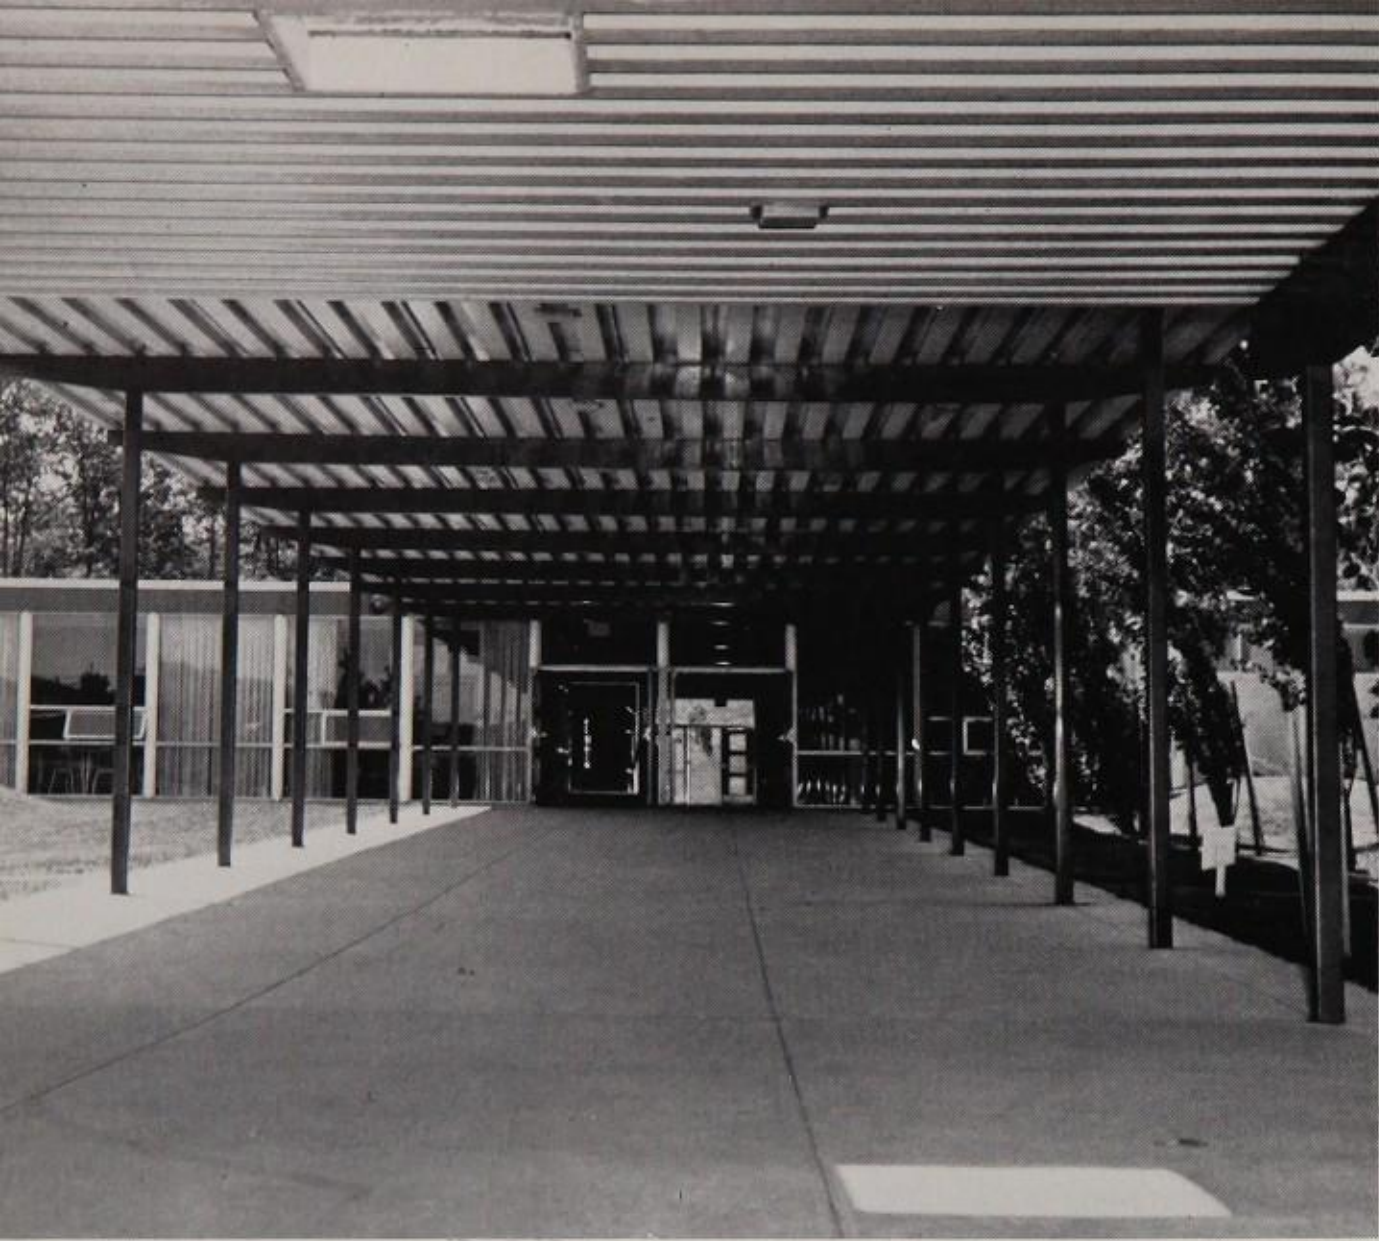

Shakespeare came to our stage and to the director's box, but we didn't see him. Perhaps he laughed a bit when Petruchio forgot his stockings. Maybe he shuddered if a line's meaning was lost through modern-day pronunciation or winked at the feminine pages. He must have thought Kate's rage as animated as ever and Bianca's beauty the same merry man trap.

The set was different from the simpler Elizabethan stage of his day and the crews much larger, but some things had not changed. There were still opening night nerves and excitement, still the same dedication, and always the question "Will they like it?" He wandered about us, became part of us, and smiled the smile of one glad to be remembered for greatness.

BASKETBALL

Even before the 1964 basketball season started, the word was around the league that our team was the one to beat. Coaches remembered that last year's highly successful team survived graduation essentially unscathed, and they chewed their nails. Espionage agents brought back unbelievable reports about stratospheric shooting percentages, ferocious rebounding, and explosive spirit.

The first half of the season fulfilled the direst fears of rival teams. One by one, Concord-Carlisle disposed of the first eleven teams on the schedule with dispatch. Barring a disastrous second half, Coach James Hayes will have guided the most feared team in Concord's Middlesex League history.

GIRL'S BASKETBALL

Girl's basketball is frenzied afternoon practices, tasty half-time oranges, and misfitted uniforms. It is rivalry, rules, and referees. It is a game of talent, devotion, and most of all, good sportsmanship. The team this year understood, appreciated, and practiced this aspect of the game. They knew how to win, which isn't really too hard, and they knew how to lose, which is sometimes very hard. Because they were "Good Sports" we are glad to say, "that's OUR team!"

HOCKEY

It would be in vain to try to cover up the facts about Concord-Carlisle's debut into Middlesex League Hockey play. We were pushovers. But hockey in our school had to have a start, and the brave boys on the team deserve perhaps the most praise of any group in the school for beginning with the most powerful teams in the state. Interest in this sport is finally being generated, and the grind of a Middlesex League schedule should improve the team's play rapidly.

CLUB

RIFLERY

The cool precision of the rifle team members is transferred from classroom to armory, paper to target, pencil to bullet. The matches don't draw many spectators, but in the tense atmosphere surrounding a vital shot, they would only be annoyances. While not involving team coordination before the target, riflery insists on team spirit at the match; this combination of exciting accuracy and subdued enthusiasm demands respect.

TEAM: R. Battles, L. Edmonds, J. Chase, T. Bogert, J. Yeames. Back: D. Smith, R. Bregoli, J. Nickerson, D. Paine.

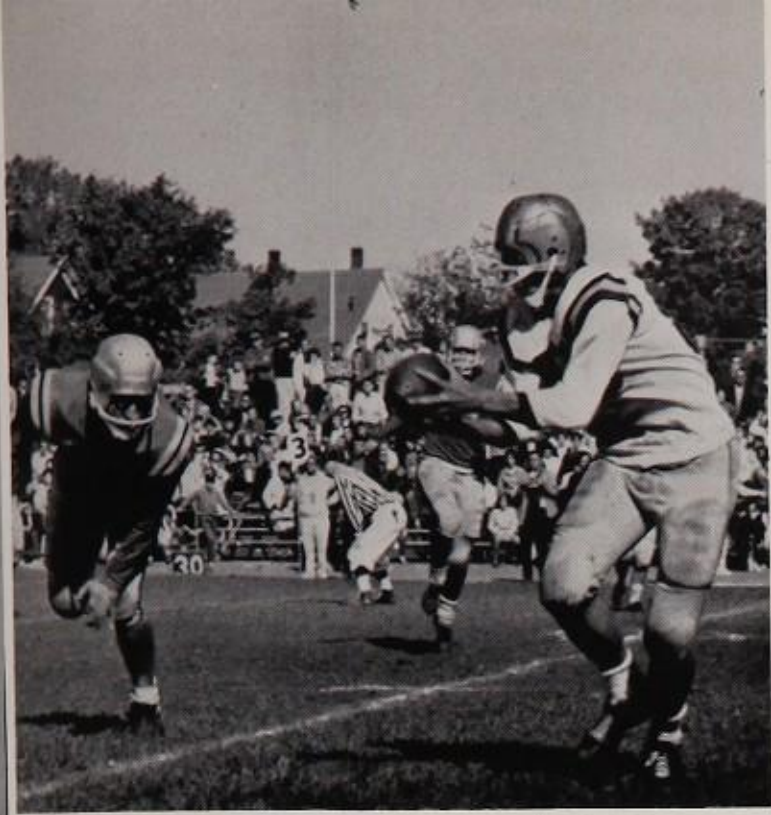

The rewards of track are not glorious. Few fans bother to cheer for the team. The newspapers squeeze a long morning of sweat, tension, and competitions into a few lines. Practices are not fun—track is as much a contest with your body as with another team, and your body—and the tape and stop-watch—is waiting for you every afternoon. Track is a hard sport to love, but when it is loved it is with the affection and respect of a person who knows he has given more than just his free afternoons and his abundant high spirits. He has worked, and received in return a mastery over his worst enemy, his body.

JUNIOR PROM

Months of preparation and hard work were well rewarded the night of February first. For on that night the school cafeteria was transformed into a lavish "Moonlit Garden" with sparkling fountains, fragrant plant-life, and soft melodies. As couples danced, the hours flew by until the highlight of the evening when Judith Hazleton was crowned Queen. As the dancers left the "Moonlit Garden" they took with them a memory not soon to be forgotten.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Senior Executive Committee was established to organize the many and varied activities of the Senior Class. Its members shared the responsibilities of a tobogganing party, talent show, and other informal gatherings. In its first year of service, the Committee set an outstanding example for coming classes.

Years of experience have shown that a house divided against itself cannot stand. In many instances the saving force in this internal struggle is strong leadership. Our Student Council this year exemplified a spirit of leadership in unifying groups within and without the school. A television program was produced bringing various aspects of school life to the entire student body. Special programs were initiated combining students from the public and private schools of Concord.

Leadership and responsibility came in many forms, thus producing evidence of the large contribution of our Student Council.

BRIDGE

If we said that this year's BRIDGE was the product of many hours of work on the part of industrious staff members, we wouldn't be lying. However, we don't want you to think that our task involved any great sacrifice or that we think we deserve commendation. It is a great feeling to be associated with something as important as the class yearbook, and we enjoy that feeling in a purely selfish way. We hope you like the 1964 BRIDGE; it was a pleasure making it.

A new printing process revolutionized this year's VOICE. News was printed as news rather than history. The format of the paper changed with each issue as the layout staff made great improvements. A sports page appeared complete with box scores. A paper previously lacking in laughs was spiced with humor, and pictures changed words into living drama. The VOICE became a newspaper in the real sense of the word.

DIAL

EDITORS: Virginia Berglind, Martha Berglind, Sarah Hall.

Every human mind has feelings to communicate. Our literary magazine, the DIAL, exists to encourage students in the high school to capture their feelings and present them to the world, hopefully in a beautiful or striking manner. Its success is evident from the large number of contributions, many coming from rather surprising sources. The DIAL is written proof that the adolescent has more to think about than the hours until 2:11, or the days until Saturday.

What is the nature of reality? What is the nature of thought? What is the nature of virtue? Is there a god? Answers to these questions and others are offered by teachers, parents, ministers, and friends, and every one is different. The purpose of the Philosophy Club is to find the real answers to basic questions, for experience has shown this to be a hopeless task. It hopes, rather to ignore the influence of biased sources in examining the thoughts of great philosophers from Plato to Sartre. Perhaps the whole study of questions and answers can be put into a better perspective by such a pursuit.

The nature of the human mind is such that impressive but illogical arguments, startling but unsupported claims, and beautiful but empty oratory are apt to be convincing. Intelligent men have always championed the concise, accurate, and logically compelling use of the language over this bombast, but too many people are enticed by the outward excitement of emotional arguments; they fail to see the far more exciting nature of sound argument. The debating team exists to encourage the use and appreciation of meticulous language, the lack of which is a basic problem in today's world.

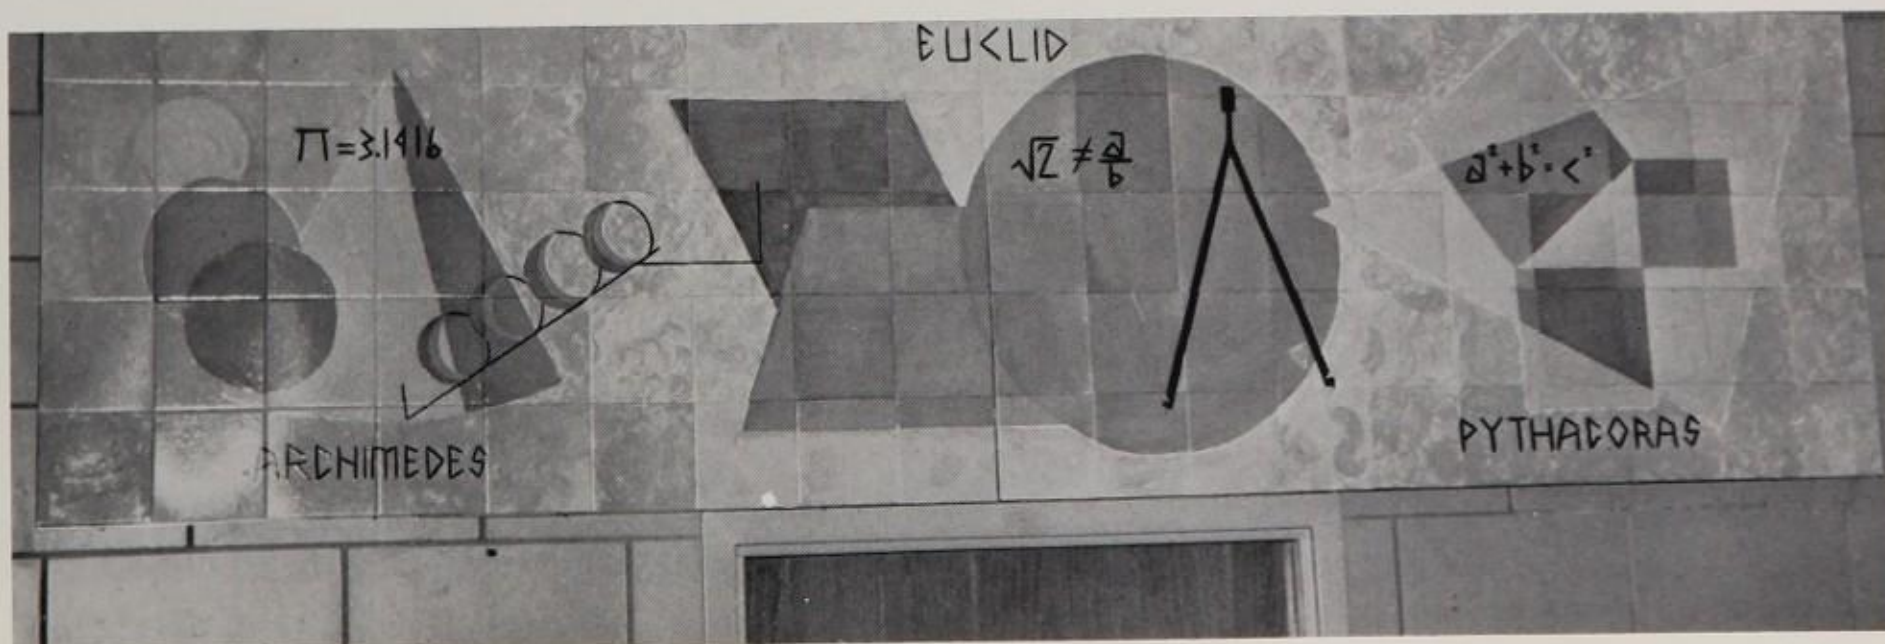

Math contests have the disturbing tendency of revealing hidden flaws in your thinking. For instance, you may suddenly remember as you walk out the test-room door that two plus two is not five, as you had been thinking the past ten minutes. Luckily, the CCHS math team spotted these kind of errors often enough to keep itself in a respectable position in both the Northeastern Mass. League and the Greater Boston League. Unluckily, other teams in both leagues have strengthened enough in the past year to endanger Concord's traditional hold of first place.

FOLK- SINGING CLUB

It is hard to recall our rich heritage in CCHS's modern, pastel hallways; nothing could be less suggestive of the log cabins and pot-bellied stoves of yesterday. Through the timeless medium of music, however, the folksinging club manages to concentrate on this important part of our history, and for an hour or two, H-1 with its stainless steel desks and green blackboards is transformed into a pioneer schoolroom. It would do everybody good to visit one of these meetings and, at least for the moment, retreat from the jet age of today.

FRENCH CLUB

Le Cercle Français à CCHS has tried to transpose a little of the French culture on to an American one. How has this been done?; through the spoken word, the curious eye, and open ear, and an experimenting mouth; through the language, the art, the songs, and the cuisine.

EXCHANGE STUDENT

This year the quiet sincerity of the Orient was brought to us through Tomoko Yamaguchi. "Tommie," our American Field Service student from Japan, has shown us a rare and pleasing combination of thoughtfulness, hard work, and spirit of life. Perhaps the greatest impression which she leaves us is her eager willingness to try anything once, even the bewildering life of an American high school. We shall long treasure Tommie's friendship as a close tie with Japan and her people.

Snow is a most magnificent creation. Its pure whiteness is praised by the poet; yuletide does not feel the same without its trim. It covers mouse holes and mountains and silences the countryside. The only sound is the muffled putt-putt of a V. W. as it climbs the mountain roads; the only motion is the arch and fall of a roostertail in deep powder.

THESPIAN SOCIETY

What is the magic of the theatre that we cannot resist? Right now we are only experiencing the amateur branch of a great art. As yet we are not bound by unions or trade superstitions because we are not earning our bread by acting or building a set. It is unlikely that even one of us will see his name in lights. The satisfaction comes when we act well our part, no matter how small, and the blaze of opening night acknowledges it.

A friend of ours once said that all the world is a stage. For now, this stage is our world and the odor of sizzling and pancake part of its atmosphere.

ORCHESTRA

An orchestra is a wild tempest's roar or the melody of a soft-flowing river. Its instruments are made with love by the finest craftsmen and the soft glow of a violin or oboe show the same care by the musician. But the spirit is not everything, for music, like all art, is ninety percent perspiration and ten percent inspiration.

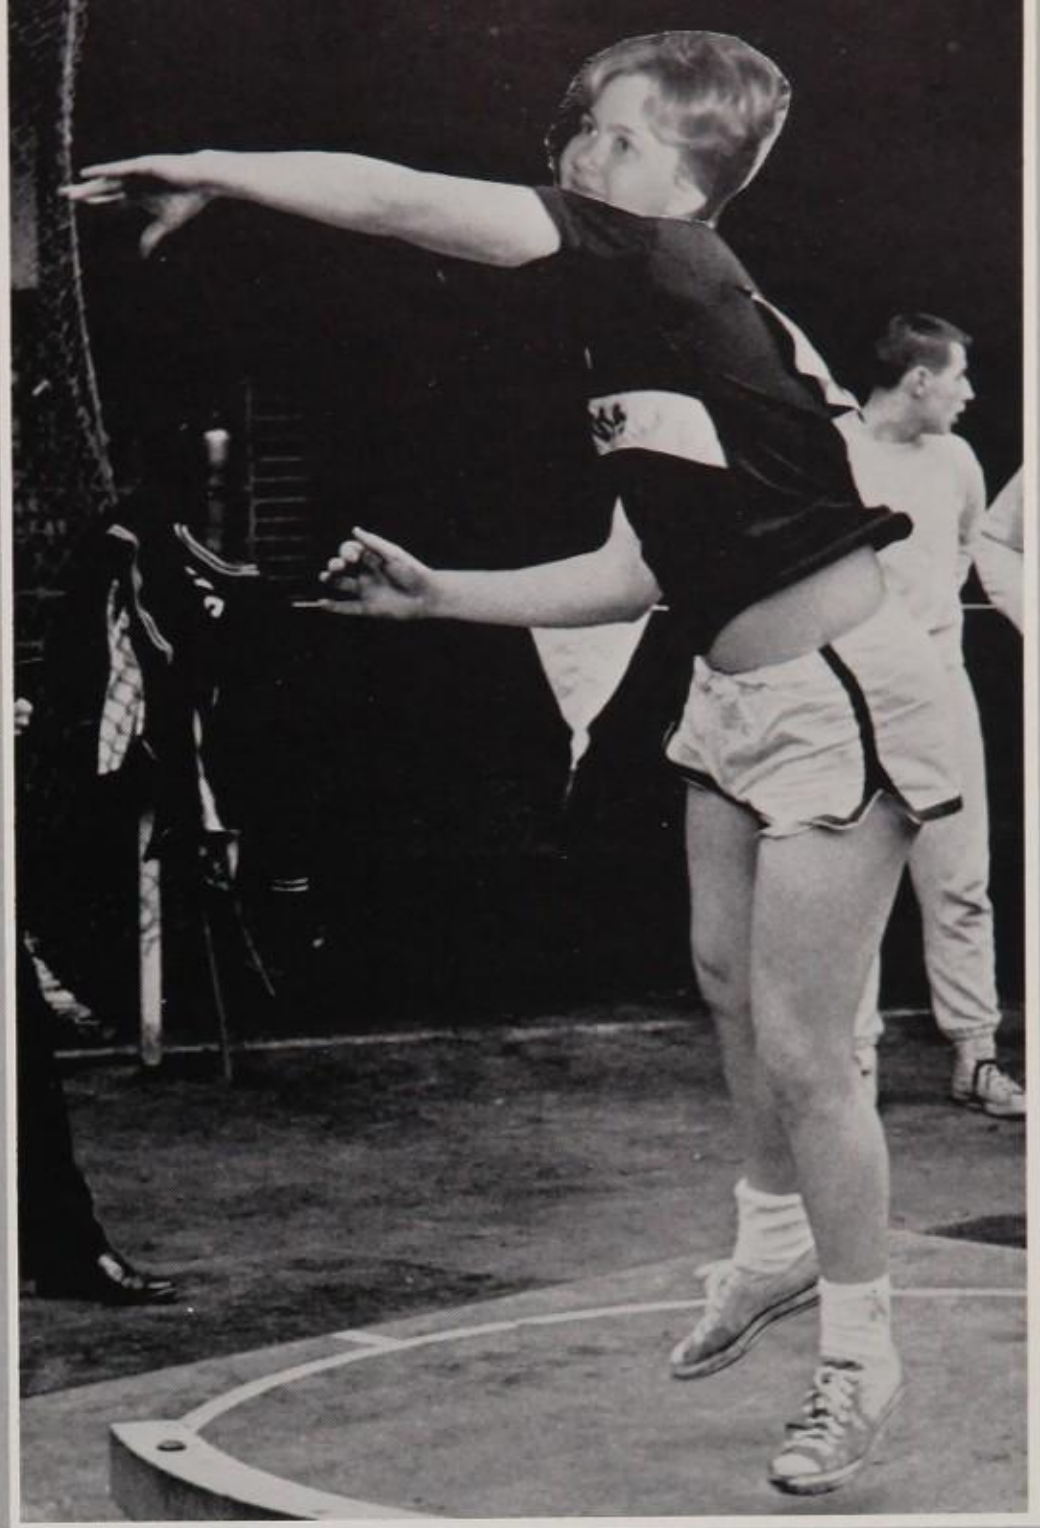

CHORUS

A swell of wind which swishes through the pines sighs in harmony. The silver tones of a brook laughing over stones is a chorus from the freedom of the hills. And man has dared to add his voice to this. Brahms can never sound like God's own music, but may we not try?

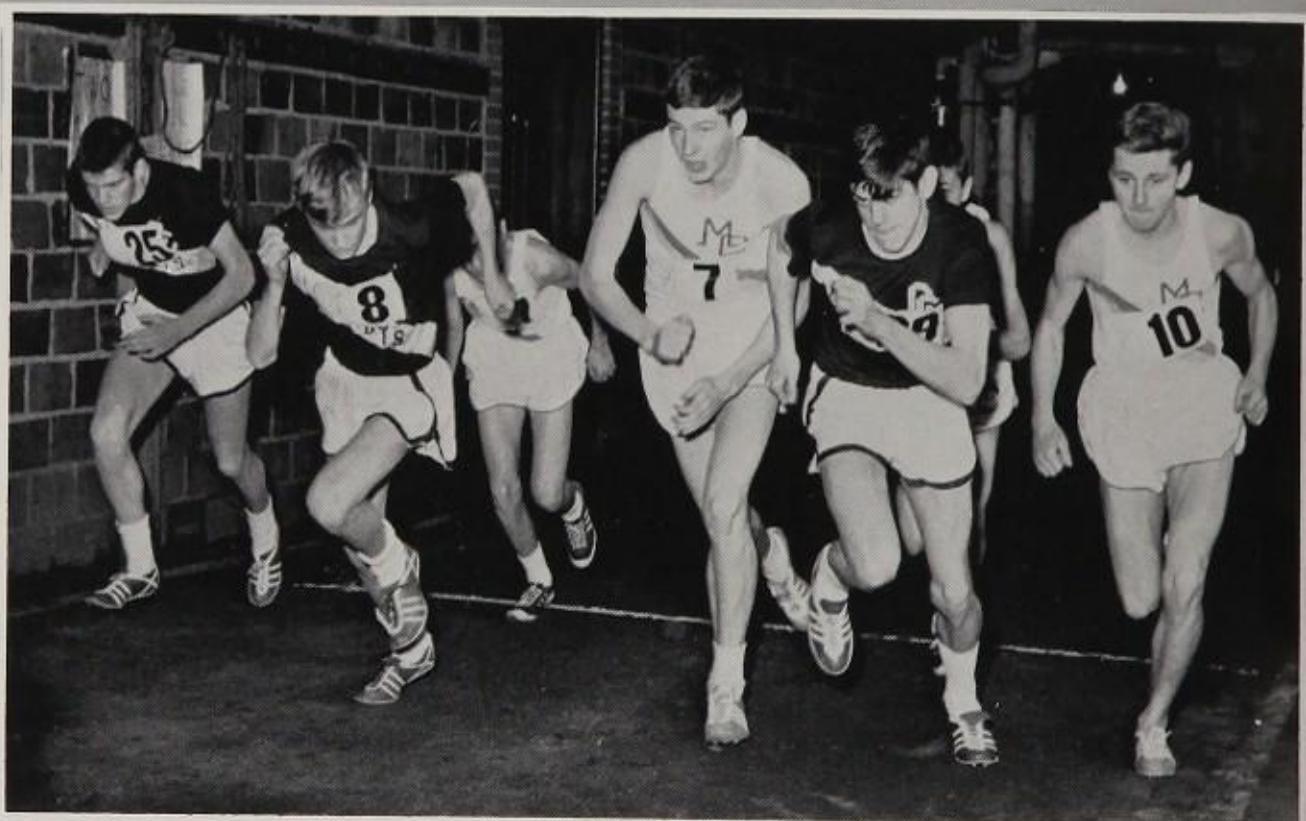

"Oh, please, give me back my dime!"

"I told you the game is tomorrow!"

"Uh, huh!"

"Let's twist again like we did last summer"

"Grab him quick, girls!"

"After this step remove that red lump. You are now holding a frog's heart."

"Yours?"

"So what if I'm standing on your foot!"

"Hot" dogs for lunch.

"Now, Gail, what time are you going to pick me up?"

9 Main St. (Over Brighams)

When things go wrong as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all uphill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high
And you want to smile, but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit-
Rest if you must, but don't you quit.
Life is queer with its twists and turns,
As everyone of us sometimes learns,
And many a fellow turns about,
When he might have won if he'd stuck it out.
Don't give up, though the pace seems slow-
You may succeed with another blow.

Often the goal is nearer than
It seems to a faint and faltering man;
Often the struggler has given up
When he might have captured the victor's cup;
And he learned too late when the night
came down
How close he was to the golden crown.
Success is failure turned inside out-
The silver tints of the clouds of doubt,
And you can never tell how close you are,
It may be near when it seems afar;
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit-
It's when things seem worst that you mustn't quit.

Concord is world famous for the decisiveness of its victories, dating back almost 200 years.

And the patriots of Revolutionary times would have been proud of the Patriots of today -- the Concord-Carlisle High basketball team, which reigns as the Class B champion of Eastern Mass.

Seldom, if ever, in the 39 years of post-season hoop play-offs has a team dominated its division the way Concord did last week at Boston Garden.

The almost ridiculous ease with which Concord disposed of Braintree, 58-39, in Saturday's title game prompted several coaches to comment that the Patriots belonged in Class A.

How well Concord could have done in this faster company is only idle conjecture, but Braintree was undefeated in 21 straight games and was unquestionably one of the state's stronger clubs.

Yet the ball-hawking Patriots, displaying exceptional poise in the face of limited tourney experience, never trailed after Hugh Kilmartin scored on a clever play immediately following the opening tap-off.

With Seth Aronie, Davey Crowther and Kilmartin accounting for most of the scoring, Concord sprinted to a 14-6 lead in the first 5 1/2 minutes. And when Kilmartin spun in from the right side for a brilliant three-pointer early in the second quarter, Concord's lead mounted to 24-12.

By half-time, Braintree still had been unable to launch an effective counter-attack as Concord used the fast break to perfection, taking advantage of many opportunities they forced with fierce rebounding at both ends of the court. When the opening was not there, the Patriots were content to take their time and set up a good shot from in close.

Although coach Jim Hayes substituted freely, the depth of the Concord squad made this strategy an effective weapon.

Concord was outscored, 11-10, in the third period, but still held a safe 41-29 lead. Then a run of seven straight points at the outset of the final quarter boosted this margin to 19 points, 48-29, and the outcome was never in doubt. Frustrated Braintree went into a frantic full court press at this point, but it was a futile and somewhat forlorn effort by an outclassed opponent.

At the final buzzer, the players hoisted coach Hayes onto their shoulders for a triumphant ride to the dressing room. There the boys pounded each other on the back and whooped it up. No previous Concord team had ever advanced to the final round and only three others had ever qualified for the tournament.

Dave Crowther played tremendous defense as he held Dave

Scolamiero the high scoring guard, to 5 points. In his previous game Scolamiero had 40 points against Mission High. Bill Donovan held his man scoreless in another tremendous defensive effort. Seth Aronie and Hugh Kilmartin controlled both backboards and scored 20 and 12 points respectively. Valuable contributions were made by Sandy Smith, Van Doty and Brent Clark to the Concord cause.

Spectators marvelled at the hustle displayed by the Patriots during the entire tournament. This and their tenacious defense were the main reasons for winning the title. In 4 games they held the opposition to an average of 37.5 points a game while notching over 60 pts. a game themselves. This was truly a team effort. Bill Donovan, next years captain, played 4 outstanding floor games making numerous passes for scores and stealing many passes for fast break possibilities. Seth Aronie, Hugh Kilmartin and Captain Dave Crowther handled the brunt of the scoring and showed excellent poise and savvy in tight situations. Van Doty, Sandy Smith, Brent Clark and the rest of the squad did the right job at the right time to aid this all-out team effort.

After the game, several Concord players confessed that while winning the title was the big thrill, they got almost as much satisfaction out of trouncing Melrose, 68-35, in the semi-final game on Friday.

That was a team victory in the truest sense and avenged the only blemish on Concord's record -- an overtime defeat at Melrose during the regular season.

With the chips on the line, however, Concord quickly moved into a 10-point lead in the first period. Then coach Hayes yanked his regulars in favor of the "go-go team" and these reserves parlayed the early advantage into an overwhelming 37-15 half-time edge.

Humiliating Concord's most bitter league opponent in the clutch left the Patriots with only one other objective -- the championship itself -- which they proceeded to wrap up in most convincing fashion.

HAIL THE CHAMPS

YOUR FAME WILL LIVE IN ANNALS OF SPORTS

There may be other sports being played around the world these days, but for most people, there has only been one for the past two weeks. That was basketball. By now, everybody in the world must know that the Concord-Carlisle Regional High School basketball team, under the steady, hard-working coach, Jim Hayes, is now the proud possessor of the Class B crown of the world - famed tournament.

All those who attended the championship game against Braintree last Saturday night, and it seemed that there were thousands in the Garden, saw Concord take on a previously unbeaten Braintree five, and literally and physically, run them right off the floor.

From the opening tap until Frank McNamara's two foul shots late in the game, there never really was a question as to the outcome but rather what the score would be. Concord played a strong ball control game, and on defense, they stuck to their men like glue. Seth Aronie, who has an odd type of toss to the basket, swept both sets of backboards, like they were his own, and Captain Davey Crowther quarterbacked the entire five right down the floor.

On several occasions when Concord was driving, they made some of the prettiest passoff plays of the night. Hugh Kilmartin was up and down like a jumping jack all night, and Van Doty, Sandy Smith, and Billy Donovan, were all over the place, as was fast-moving Rabbit Clark.

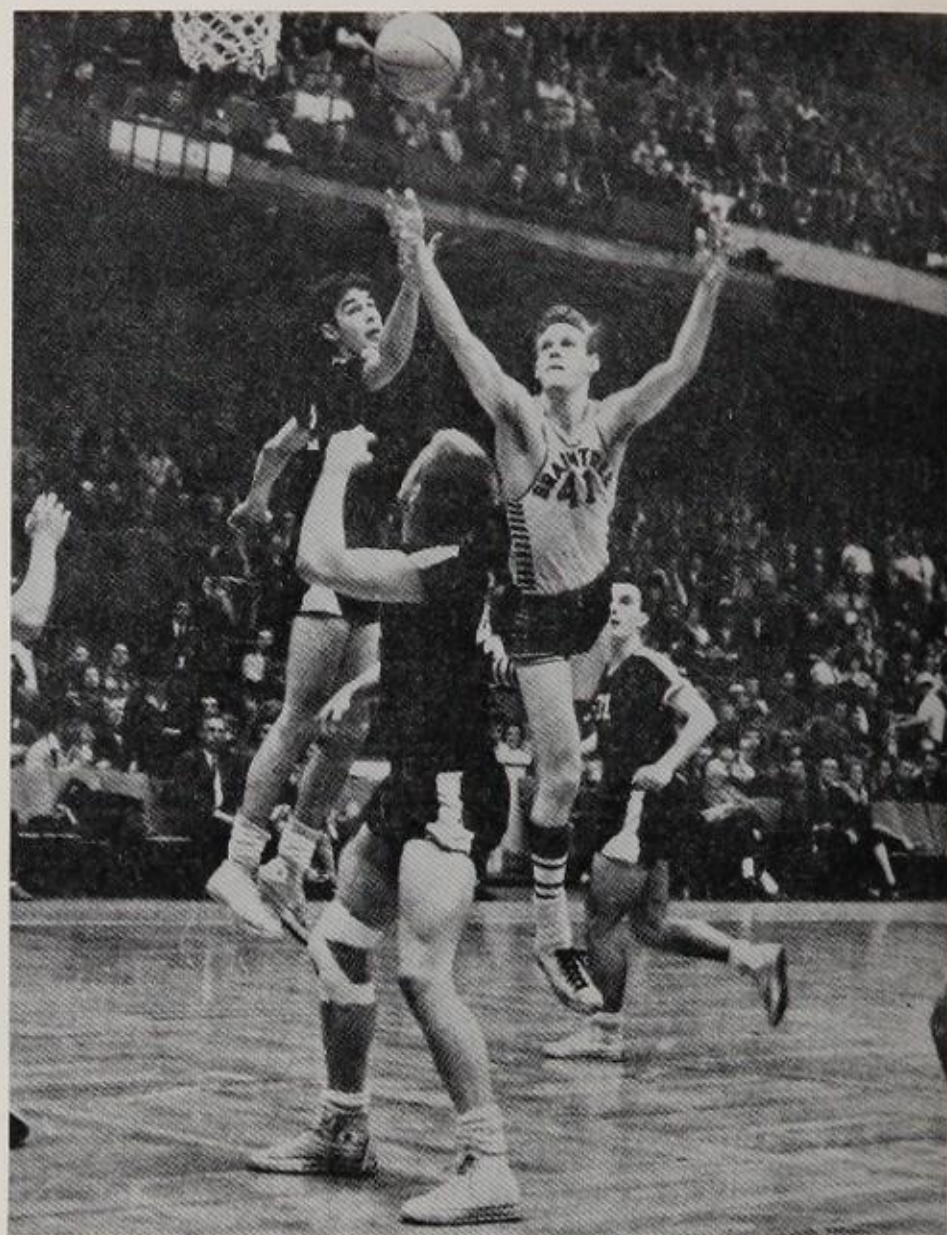

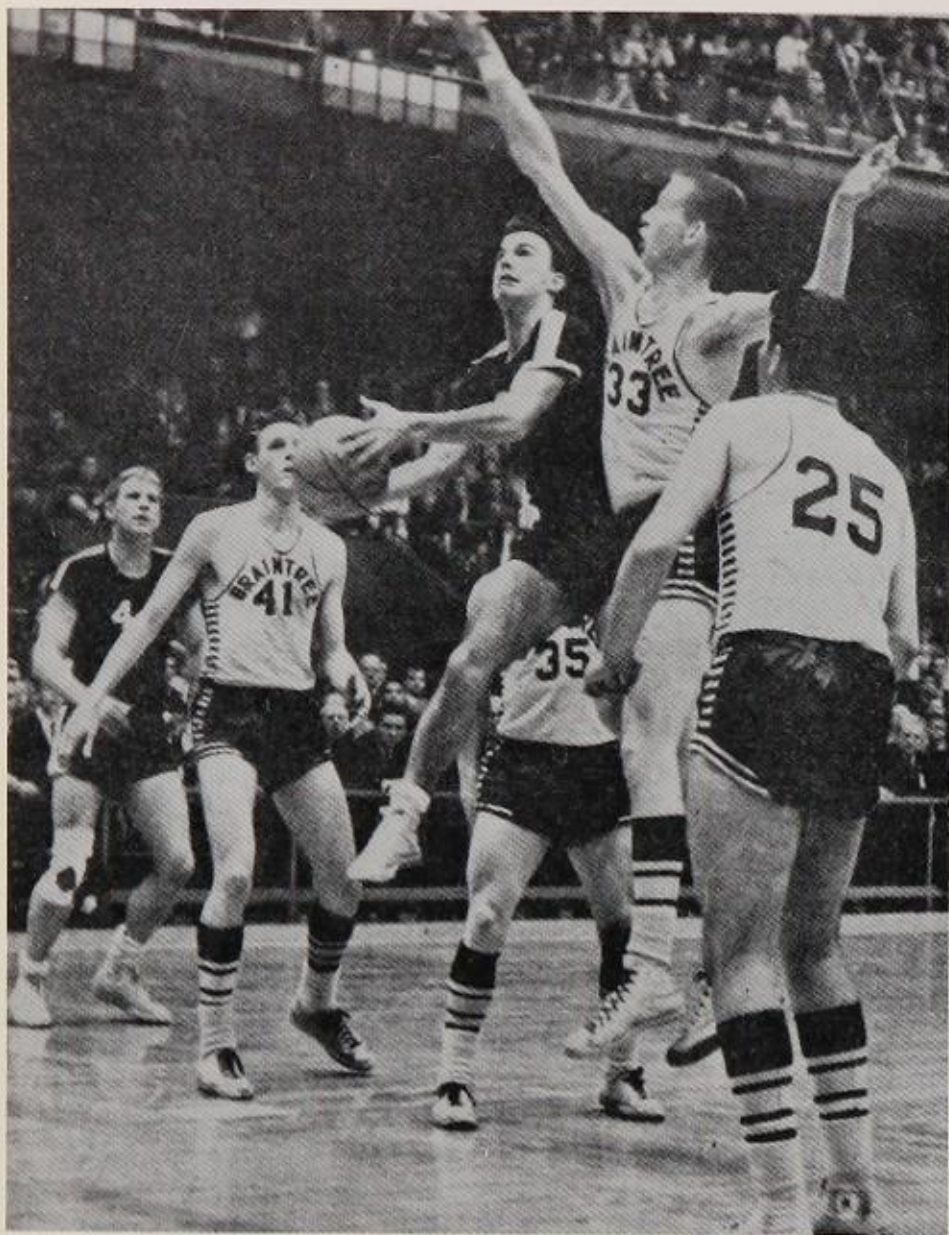

To one and all, we bid you congratulations, champs, and you certainly have brought honor and glory to yourselves, your coach, your school, and to your community, and long after the memories of the tournament are gone, your fame will live in the annals of local sports.

ACTION AT THE BOSTON GARDEN

The Feminine Influence

BOYS' TENNIS

Every sport has its unique beauty. The prodigious wrath of an aroused football player as he annihilates the opposition, the cool precision of a hot-handed basketball player as he ravages the nets, the swift, compact savagery of an embattled baseball player as he gloves the ball—these are thrills we anticipate with relish as we go to the field or gym. The game of tennis exhibits these basic thrills in a continuous ballet of athletic grace. The tennis player must be ruthless, precise, and powerful, but he must also be elegant in his movements; only then can he use his cruder assets to advantage.

SOFTBALL

Captain Ann Windheim with Coach Lehrbach.

Softball '64 was comprised of many things, among which are broken bats, bones and numerous black and blues. Uncovered in the above was the major ingredient of a winning team . . . spirit. The spirit was generated by Ann Windheim who, as captain, tirelessly encouraged and inspired us to play our best, win or lose. The many five o'clock practices, Miss Lehrbach's willing determination to help us learn, and even our famous isometrics helped us to become the team we were. Some boys may laugh at our isometrics, but would any of them like to compare batting averages?

These things and many other moments of triumph and also defeat helped each and every one of us to be enthusiastic winners, and even more important, gracious losers.

VARSITY—Coach Carew, R. Laughlin, J. Nickerson, H. Goranson, V. Doty, E. Davis, R. Woodin, E. Woodin, F. McNamara, W. Donovan, D. Crowther, J. Tucker, J. Boyton, B. Clark.

BASEBALL

The Concord-Carlisle baseball team compiled an overall season's record of 18 wins and 4 losses, and, in so doing, captured the Middlesex League Championship for the 1964 season. This was Concord's second league championship of the 1963-64 school year. Considering that Concord is, by far, the smallest school in the tough Middlesex League, this is certainly an accomplishment of which the school can be proud.

Although not a powerful hitting team, the Concord nine employed a tight defense, fine pitching, and aggressive baserunning in winning their games. Poise was their "long suit" in that they made few mistakes themselves, yet forced their opponents to make costly errors—those costly errors that mean ballgames. This element of poise, this playing of the percentages on the field and at bat, contributed more than any other factor to the success of the 1964 baseball season.

GOLF

Back: B. Bates, P. Thompson, B. Damon, P. Hanson. Front: L. Old, S. Aronie, Captain K. Anderson, F. Carley, A. Kantorski.

Coached by Mr. Cahoon and Mr. Bouchard, the five man golf team plus two alternatives traveled from course to course but won only two matches. These two were against Maynard and Wakefield and considering the teams Concord played, the record is far from discouraging. This year the team loses five seniors including captain Ken Anderson. Such a dent can only be filled by eager golfers no matter what their scores are. Even if a member is not chosen, as an alternative he is allowed to practice at the home course—Concord Country Club—on away match days. No positions are permanent, so come on out!

TRACK AND FIELD

This year's outdoor track and field team posted a better record than those of the past few years. Although the ranks were slim, the Patriots collected three wins while dropping five dual meet contests. Five Patriots brought home ribbons from the Middlesex League Meet and four captured medals in the State Championships. Two Patriot records were set during the season: one by Captain Dick Gormely who threw the javelin over eight feet farther than anyone else has while wearing a Patriot uniform, and the second by next year's Captain-elect Sandy Smith who tied a Patriot dual meet record in the high jump by clearing the bar at six feet. We hope that the Patriots' new coach, Mr. Harold Manley, was encouraged by the performance of this year's team.

AMERICAN FIELD SERVICE

None of the A.F.S. members will forget the exhausting candy selling and car washing that highlighted this past year, but the benefits—lasting friendships in the form of a boy from Iceland and a girl from Sweden to stay with us next year, parties with other A.F.S. students, and most of all Tomoko—greatly recompence.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Back: N. Watson, G. Kantorski, M. Houck, M. Frantz, S. Aronie, S. Smith, D. Alden, H. Kilmartin, M. Davenport, R. Woodin, H. Walker, J. Bailey. Middle: F. McNamara, D. Hull, J. Hull, N. Bowen, D. Less than five percent of the students at CCHS have the honor of being selected and inducted into this nationally respected society. Scholarship, Leadership, Character and Service are the necessary qualities for membership in the National Honor Society. We are sure that these four qualities are inherent in each of these fine students and we are proud to have them as friends and fellow students.

CLASS NIGHT

Memories were in order. Silly high school behavior, old and new, was held up to be ridiculed—fondly. Yes, fondly, for four years of childishness were four years of growth, four years of happiness, and four years of life. They were our four best years, and they made us look forward to the effort of living with a smile.

Queen—Judi Johnson, Attendants Mary Ann Campell, Jane Creighton, Pres. Tiano, Rebecca Ramsey and Dottie McMullen.

SENIOR PROM

It was a night transcending reality, beginning weeks before with timid invitations, passing through days of feverish activity, and ending perhaps with the long drive home from Crane's. No doubt about it, it was an ordeal—the obstacles of tuxedos, gowns, corsages, and parents all had to be surpassed—but it was worth it; after dreamy dances in Waltham, Gidget at Birdie's and fifteen hours of sleep on Friday, we knew it was worth it.

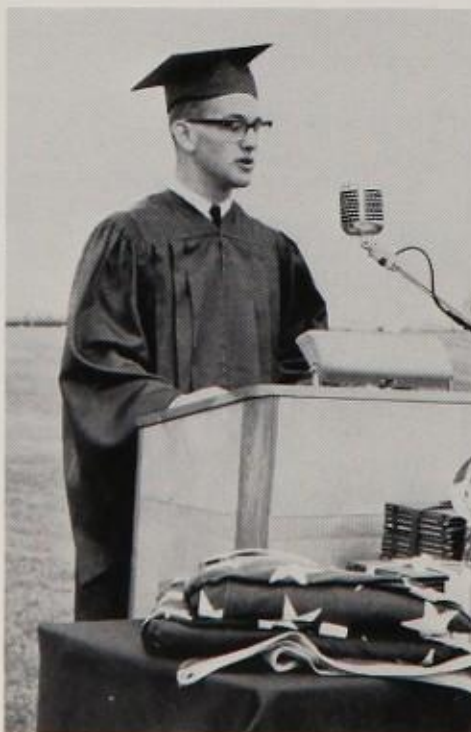

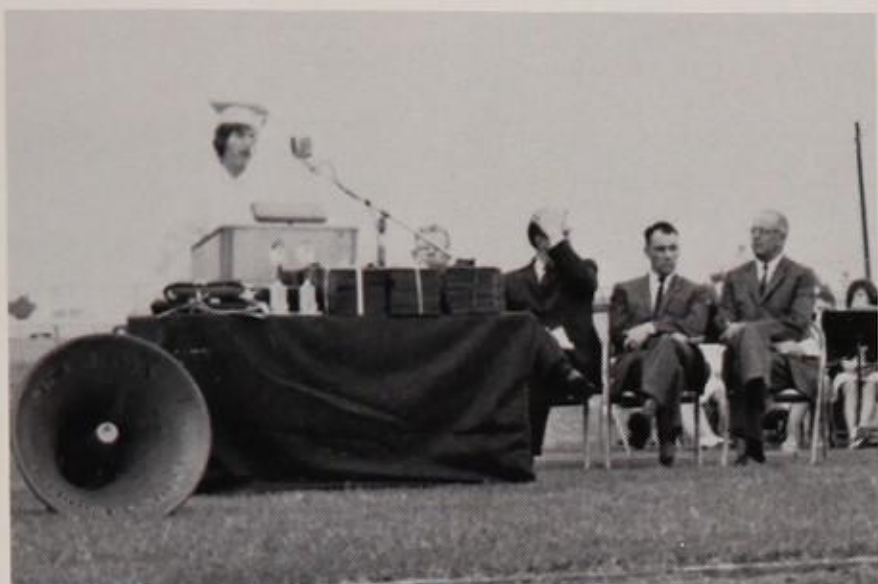

GRADUATION

The graduating class of 1964 certainly excelled in many fields and, in doing so, they have established certain goals—goals which future classes can seek to attain in the coming years.

With the reception of their diplomas, the graduates not only complete their secondary studies, but also enter into a new and more challenging way of life. The troops have been trained, but the real battle is about to begin.
